principal architect

EDISON CHING MANOZO PADILLA - architect, cartoonist

Ed Padilla has come a long way -- from a struggling, yet determined architecture student at the University of Santo Tomas (1997-2002), an occasional and sometimes incidental cartoonist and a part time design builder, to now being a full fledged architect with numerous other accomplishments that an ordinary twenty something would have never even imagined of achieving.

Architect Ed, as most of his co-workers and peers would call him, passed the board exams in 2003 with flying colors. Being the passionate go-getter that he is, Ed did not waste any time and immediately established his own architectural design and construction firm -- the ECMP architect+builder located in San Juan, Metro Manila where he was born and raised. Apart from this monumental achievement, Architect Ed has not forgotten his first love --- drawing. Throughout the years, Ed has polished his skills in being a cartoonist, incessantly drawing characters and comical scenes and situations for what will later on become his first ever comic book, MANG ED. After years of compilation, hard work, struggles and tons of laughter, together with Mr. Christopher Ching, they published his first comic book in 2001. Although the nature of his profession and business is serious, he maintains a humorous disposition, often finding the funny events in the realities of life.

Architect Ed is currently maintaining his full-staffed office, continuing to design and build quality establishments. He is likewise gathering anecdotes, ideas and experiences to come up with his future comic books.
